LIVELY CONTEST LOOMS IN G. O. P. FOR MAYORALTY

Mentioned For Weeks, Some Entrants Are Actively In Field

NINE OR MORE LISTED TO DATE

At Least Two Loom As Possibilities on Democratic Side

Indications of a lively contest for Republican mayoralty nomination already are to be found in Salem, although the August primary election is more than four months away.

Names of several possible candidates have been mentioned for many weeks, and now a few of them are actively in the field.

No formal announcements have been made, but it is generally understood that Mayor John M. Davidson, by completing his second term, will be a candidate for a third term.

Two former Mayors May Run There is a possibility, too, that two former mayors may enter the race. R. R. Johnson, mayor many years ago has been seriously considering entering the race again.

George E. Russell, who was succeeded by Phil G. Hiddleson about six years ago, has given some thought to another trial, but so far date has not been announced.

It is expected that Harry W. Kesselmire, defeated by Mayor Davidson at the primaries two years ago, will make his second race this year.

Councilman George Harroff has been building his fences for several weeks. He is an avowed candidate for mayor, but is withholding announcement until later.

Donald J. Buraw, justice of the peace, is keeping his ear to the ground, expecting to become a candidate for mayor unless there is some change in the situation between now and time for filing.

The same possibility exists with respect to the anticipated candidacy of R. John Taylor. If he enters the race it will be his first attempt in a political contest.

The names of Charles D. Baker, president of council, and Service Director Clyde R. Reich are mentioned occasionally, but neither has indicated that he expects to become a candidate.

Phillips Democratic Possibility On the Democratic side, it is reported that Norman Phillips may be a candidate. While it is known that he has given consideration to the suggestion of friends that he file, it is believed that he has not yet come to a decision.

City Treasurer A. Earl Beardmore also has been mentioned as a possible candidate on the Democratic ticket. However, he is more interested in his candidacy for appointment as postmaster to succeed Frank J. Eckstein.

Beardmore is one of three Salem Democrats who have filed their applications with Congressman Lawrence Inhoff. The other two are Russell J. Burns and Fred Reeves.

Eckstein's term expired last December and he is now serving until his successor is appointed. Democrats in congress blocked attempts of Republicans to reappoint postmaster whose term expired when the lame duck congress convened in December.

That action held up all appointments until the present Democratic congress convened. It now seems possible that no appointments may be made during the present session of congress due to the pressure on President's part to have his economic program enacted.

GOVERNOR PUTS NAME ON BILL

Sale of 3.2 Brew Becomes Effective In State Immediately

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, March 31.—With the governor's signature duly attached, the Ohio statute making the sale, manufacture and distribution of 3.2 per cent beer legal, reposed today in the secretary of state's office, a full-fledged law. It is effective immediately.

The governor received the measure last night, a few hours after it hurdled the final barrier in the general assembly. While newsmen and members of the legislature looked on, the executive affixed his signature and shortly afterward announced he had named two of the seven members of the liquor control commission created by the new law.

They were Edward T. Dixon of Cincinnati, former Hamilton county common pleas judge, and E. J. Sklenicka, Cleveland attorney.

Governor White indicated he would name a director and the remaining five commission members today.

Await License Rush Once they are duly qualified, the director and commissioners will make ready for the expected rush of applications for licenses to make, distribute and sell the beverage.

Ohioans, however, must wait until after April 7 to consume legal beer, that being the date when modification of the Volstead act, federal law, becomes effective.

First Glass of Beer To Cost Just $2.106

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 31.—The first glass of Ohio-made beer sold in Ohio will net the federal and state governments exactly $2.106.

This represents the combined state and federal tax which must be paid before a spigot can be turned or a foaming schooner downed.

Of course, the return per glass will diminish after the first sale in direct ratio to the amount sold—but that's what it will cost beer purveyors before they can do business.

Federal and state tax on breweries is $1,000 in each instance. Uncle Sam charges $5, and Ohio $1, a combined tax-per-barrel of $6.

In addition, Ohio restaurant keepers, hotel proprietors and operators of clubs and the like must pay a yearly tax of $100 to sell over the table. Retail stores, like your corner grocery, must pay $50 a year to get bottled beer.

The taxes have resulted in considerable discord among brewers over the cost per glass to the customer.

Calculations go all the way from "the biggest glass of beer in town for a nickel" to 15 cents a mug. One estimate was on the basis of large turnover—"two glasses for a quarter."

Father, Two Sons, Charged In Theft of Four Chickens

A New Alexander man and his two sons are being held by county authorities in Lisbon today following their arrest on chicken stealing charges in Minerva late Thursday night.

DATES FOR ARMY DRIVE ARE SET

Emergency Donation Appeal Will Be Made During April 18-22

The Salvation Army board today announced April 18 to 22 as dates for its emergency donation campaign through which funds will be asked to aid the organization in its relief work.

Headquarters for the drive will be established at the Elks home. Committees are being formed to conduct the work.

Relieving distress in various forms has proved a tremendous task. Captain Agnes Reinke, officer in charge of the local corps, pointed out today as she discussed plans for the campaign. She cited the following case:

"A certain man, whom we will call Wilners, a carpenter, who had been unemployed for more than a year, came to us for aid through the recommendation of others with whom he had come in contact."

Wilners' wife died nine months ago, leaving three children, aged nine, six and two years, respectively. The oldest boy was compelled to stay at home to care for his younger brother while the father did occasional work. This continued until school authorities learned of it and asked to have him placed in a home, also the other children. Wilners did not want to be separated from his children and so he wrote to his sister in St. Louis, asking whether she could make their home with her temporarily. The sister consented and so Wilners started out with his three sons for his sister's home. They had been on the road for a week when they applied in Salem for aid.

Given Aid in Salem "We took them in and provided a warm room and food for them and only lack of funds prevented us from doing more."

"The two oldest boys were considerable of their little brother and they felt their responsibility to him; and Wilners has proved a dutiful father."

Wilners is extremely anxious to get to St. Louis that he might settle until school closes and he hopes by that time to be able to find some work whereby he might provide all the necessities for his little family.

"We, too, earnestly trust that it will be his good fortune to have his plans realized, for it is a hard role for one person to play the part of both mother and father."

Paroles were granted six penitentiary prisoners and two Marysville women's reformatory inmates, among them James Bell of Butler county, sentenced for larceny, who will be released May 1.

SHERIFF'S DEPUTY WOUNDED DURING KENSINGTON FIGHT

George Hayes, E. Liverpool, Recovering In Salem City Hospital; Gunmen Run Down In Swamp by Posse of 100 Armed Men

Captured in a swamp near Kensington after a thrilling gun battle involving more than 100 persons, including county, city, village and township officers, five Alliance men, one formerly of Salem and another a former Washingtonville resident, today are held in Carroll county jail, Carrollton, as suspects in a Carrollton gasoline station holdup.

Deputy Sheriff George Hayes of East Liverpool is in the Salem City hospital recovering from a shotgun wound in his forehead sustained during an automobile chase just south of Kensington.

A large buckshot was removed from Hayes' forehead in an operation at the hospital last night. The deputy's condition is not believed serious. The wound is reported to have resulted from a spent bullet which ricocheted from the running board of Hayes' auto.

Held in Carrollton today are Louis Nagy, 31, said to be a former resident of this city; James Dawson, 33, formerly of Washingtonville; Alfred Johnson, 29, Emmett Coff, 31, and John Cutting, 34.

Today they are reported to have admitted the holdup of the Bee Hive gasoline station Carrollton, where they obtained 13 gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil after forcing the attendant into the station office at the point of a revolver.

The automobile in which the quintet drove through Salem and Lisbon to Kensington then on to Carrollton is said to have been stolen in Alliance while license plates on the car were taken from the machine owned by J. W. Greene, East Liverpool bank teller, on March 2.

Suspects Plot on Bank Sheriff Ballantine today theorized that the men had for several days been planning to hold up and rob the Kensington bank, and drove to the village yesterday but found, on arrival there, that they had insufficient gasoline and oil. They then drove to the Carrollton station, ordering the attendant to "Fill it up."

Asking the latter the amount of the bill, the attendant asked one of the men to come into the office and he would figure it up. "We're not going in and you're not going anywhere!" one of the bandits told the attendant, at the same time pointing a revolver in the man's face.

The attendant was forced into the office, after which the bandits fled towards Kensington. Sheriff John McFadden of Carroll county was notified and he immediately started in pursuit, delaying only long enough to notify Sheriff Ballantine that the men were driving into Columbiana county. Ballantine, accompanied by Deputy Paul Early started out in one machine, while Deputy Hayes and Fred Smith of Salem drove in another car.

These bandits, who had passed through Salem, then Lisbon, from Alliance, en route to Carrollton, taking a roundabout route, were speeding north towards Kensington, pursued by Sheriff McFadden, when they were met by the two cars from Lisbon. Refusing orders to halt, the

Just to Burn

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 31.—Glad to see that reforestation and employment bill pass. We got to have a lot more forests and trees, otherwise these cigaret smokers won't have anything to burn up.

Say here is something that for the good of the internal revenue collectors, ought to be made straight. We all kinder smile, and the papers headline it, any time that somebody gets a refund on their income tax. That's given wide publicity, but here is something that everybody don't know, because they are not allowed to publicize it. They collect lots more back disputed taxes than they pay out.

It's news if you can get anything out of the government, but if the government gets anything out of you, that ain't news; that's just a habit. But Uncle Sam has no more faithful, or fair servants.

Yours, Will Rogers

BETTER ACQUAINTED

Reports from France continue to give the impression that time is the only thing needed to convince Frenchmen that the $19,000,000 their government refused to pay the United States last December is costing them dearly. There are more and more reasons for believing that payment finally will be made.

Perhaps it is seeing things a little too brightly to say that a probable effect of all this will be a better acquaintanceship between France and the United States. After all, fair-weather friendships can't be compared favorably with friendships tested by strife and reconciliation.

Whatever Americans may think of Frenchmen, either individually or collectively, there is little doubt that something has happened to change the international attitude of Frenchmen toward Americans. To say it briefly, they have discovered that the creditor people on this side of the Atlantic intend to draw a line in the matter of holding the bag for the war debts.

A few days ago in Paris, a certain eminent Frenchman, who visited this country recently, told a business audience that default has cost France more than $150,000,000. "So great is feeling in the United States against France," he warned, "that it is doubtful whether, in the present state of public opinion there, we would obtain American aid if we were involved in another war." Although most Americans haven't cared to be so blunt about it, they will concede that there is no love lost for a nation which, owing $4-100,000,000 in unsecured debts, refused to pay $19,000,000 on interest.

Being blunt about it isn't such a bad idea, apparently. Unless France has been hiding behind a bluff, this is the first time it has discovered that the United States is populated with people who have teeth as well as soft hearts. War debts begin to look different when default of a little sum like $19,000,000 can make a nation so angry it takes away more than $100,000,000 in business from the defaulter within a third of a year. Evidently, debtors aren't the only people who have minds of their own.

If it is ironed out—and there is a growing possibility that it will be—Americans and Frenchmen may come to have a new mutual respect for each other. Being primarily interested in business, both countries are able to recognize and appreciate sound business judgment, which is the basis on which the debts seem destined to be settled eventually.

RECESS

It's almost a shock to remember with what misgivings the convening of legislative bodies used to be awaited and with what unrestrained joy announcements of adjournment once were received. Those were the good old days when rugged individualism still flourished—back before too much unrestrained ruggedness made it necessary for government to stand by ready to rescue almost every enterprise that felt itself beginning to fall down.

Significantly, announced adjournment of the Ohio assembly this week has inspired more "Well done's" than the kind of unbridled abuse which used to be snarled on the poor legislators when they were preparing to leave the scene of parliamentary carnage. The fact is, Ohio has more than the customary amount of respect for the new assembly. It has displayed an ability to prove that representative democracy can be a pretty fair system of government under some circumstances.

With a few exceptions, it has been an assembly able to knuckle down to leadership when knuckling down contributed to harmony and efficient disposition of the state's pressing business. It has allowed Gov. White to dictate to it, but in the knowledge that most of the legislation the governor demanded seemed at the time to be a true expression of the will of the people. In short, it has lent itself to the same centralization of authority which is being hailed in Washington as a spectacular means of making representative democracy work in periods of extraordinary stress.

There will be no more legislating in Columbus until the middle of May. In the meantime, there will be a breathing spell and time to tie up certain loose ends which may appear in the next few weeks. For the present, there being nothing else to do, it seems to be in the best tradition of good government that there should be a recess. There is neither regret nor pleasure with the announcement. The same generous attitude prevails with regard to the national congress. For the first time in years, big business is not croaking that it would be better off if congress would adjourn. The country isn't afraid of legislation now, but afraid of lack of it in the right places. The legislator's prestige has gone into a steep climb.

What Others Say

MEDIEVAL PENALTIES

Governor "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma proposes to turn back the pages of penal history to a century or two and re-institute whipping in the stocks and public whippings as punishments for young offenders.

Ten to 50 lashes, administered by the parent or guardian, constitute the penalty he advises the Oklahoma Legislature to impose for young boys on conviction of a first offense. For the second offense he would put such a boy in the stocks with hands and feet fastened, in an open courtyard, "to take for a day or so the scorn, jeers and paper wads of his associates." For older youths he proposed more severe whipping, and for hardened third offenders the death penalty.

The world experimented for a good many years with the stocks and other types of penalty that tend to brutalize not only the recipient but also those who see and participate in the punishment. Presumably they were abandoned because they did not prove effective in eliminating misconduct. Certainly there is no reason to believe that people in general were fundamentally better than they are now. And there is good reason to believe that they were less humane and sympathetic in their relations with one another.

We wonder whether Governor Murray has pictured in his own mind a community in which public whippings are a daily occurrence, in which a crowd of gawky fellows about the stocks to jeer and throw missiles at the poor unfortunate confined there. Such a community may appear attractive to him. But it isn't the kind of place in which we should like to live and rear our children.—Columbus Citizen.

THE WIFE'S MAIDEN NAME

Should women retain their maiden name after marriage? The desire of many of them to do so may be strengthened by the example of Frances Perkins, first woman in a President's cabinet, who retains her maiden name professionally, although in her personal relations she is a married woman, Mrs. Paul C. Wilson.

Some feminists may say that the custom by which a woman meekly gives up her own cherished name, to which she feels a sentimental attachment, is a kind of relic of the days when women were subjected to their husbands. But the real reason why the custom of taking the husband's name continues is probably because of its convenience.

If all married women were known by their maiden names, confusion would arise. The store clerk might not know who the married Miss A. is, but if she has taken her husband's name and is now Mrs. B., then in many cases he could identify her. Similarly some friend of Miss A. who knows her after her marriage by her maiden name, might not realize that Mr. B.—as her husband if she does not take his name.

The case of a woman like Miss Perkins who has made a professional reputation under her maiden name is different. She makes a sacrifice if she drops a name under which her reputation was acquired. A business man would suffer if he had to change the name under which he had built up a business. It is the same with a woman, if she wishes to continue in business after marriage.

So the ladies are free to do as they like. They will in ordinary cases save confusion to take the husband's name. But they should not be asked to make a new start in some occupation by abandoning the name under which they built up their success.—Newark Advocate.

NEW YORK, March 31—Thoughts while strolling: What became of heart-shaped maple sugar? Paavo Nurmi and Earl Carroll look alike. So do the Otis Wieses. The odor of the roses make me think of funerals. The click-clack from fencing studios. Col. House's pair of Cairns. What's this about saving a big international banker for "investigation desert"? And of keeping in all away so he won't talk? I'm always forgetting to look up that word gonion. One-word description of Helen Morgan—twisty. Somehow those guards around J. P. Morgan's town house make me feel self-conscious. Nobody can look so ready to go places as Jules Givens. Or barge along like Willem Van Loon.

Off stage, Katherine Cornell looks as droopy as waffle batter. But behind the footlights, O Boy! But no one looks so different off stage as Chic Sale. Just a thin-looking boy. And who would ever imagine Harold Ross as editor of the "ophisticated New Yorker"? Leo Newman, dean of the ticket brokers.

Every writer receives letters from the neophyte as to his reaction to certain literary ideas. Perhaps the most admirable advice on the subject was given by Thomas Mason, the editor of Life, to Christopher Morley. He said: "If you have an idea, look at it steadily until you think you see in it something that no one else has seen; then it'll be your own, and something every editor will want."

So brave and successful was Nellie Revell's fight to regain health and a place in the world, most of us merely accept it as just another recovery. The other night, I was reminded of her gallant struggle by hearing her over the radio—cheerful, well poised and in love with living. I know of no one on the air in several years whose voice and diction were so engaging. And what she said was direct and helpful.

Idiosyncrasies of the great: Charlie Chaplin takes a hot bath immediately after breakfast each morning. Will Rogers doesn't collect his movie salary sometimes for several months. The Manhattan home of Albert Offinger is filled with trick musical appliances.

A clerk in an avenue shop tells me, Al Jolson, admiring a certain case in a window, ordered to sent to as many friends. On his way out he remembered 10 more and wound up with a total purchase of 30. Nothing gives one such a skyey feeling as remembering old friends with gifts now and then. Maybe that accounts for Jolson's buoyancy. I've a notion to order a bucket of red drops to scatter around.

Perhaps ingrained Scot inhibitions arouse my admiration for the reckless buyer. My purchases usually are falling. I leave a store wishing I'd bought more. I remember watching Charlie Norris select 300 ties at a whack, at Charvet's in Paris, for friends. It was impressive, but I went home with the ipusae.

The King of Spain, when kinging, shopped with the greatest profligacy. He often bought 100 suits at a time, and the same number of shoes from his bootmaker. Noel Coward is, reputedly, the most extravagant buyer of pajamas and house robes. Tom Mix used to buy those cream-colored gaudy hats in several gross lots, of all sizes, for himself and friends. George Jean Nathan is said to own 75 airplane-shouldered overcoats, and Rocky is a sucker for silk underwear in six dozen lots.

Among ladies, Mrs. James Donahue is the heaviest buyer of fur coats, and Clara Bell Walsh is the milliner's best friend. Barbara Hutton tops the list of shoe buyers—at least on the Atlantic seaboard.

At the Plaza neighborhood theater, the trademark lion was flashed upon the screen, but there was no roar when the mouth of the beast opened. So Lucius Beebe sat up, cheeped like a canary, and went back to his nodding.

What and When is Old Age

"Pretty good for an old man," is an expression commonly heard. But nobody wants to be old. Indeed most of us resent being told we are getting old.

What is old age? When does it arrive? These questions taxed the ancient philosophers and they are still the problem of modern scientists.

As the years advance, the human body undergoes certain changes. Adjustment must be made to meet these changes. The person who overlooks this necessity subjects his body to great dangers.

By "adjustment" I mean the essential changes which should be made in habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise. One cannot do at 60, what was perfectly safe at 20.

We are all the time reading in the newspapers stories about important men dying unexpectedly. In most instances, death occurred after eating a large meal. There are few things more dangerous than the common practice of overeating. This is particularly true of the man or woman beyond middle age.

Overeating is one of the common faults of mankind. It should not be done. Eat slowly, enjoy your food, but always leave the table "a little hungry." Drink plenty of water, not at meals but between meals. This helps rid the body of poisonous substances.

Overexertion is another danger that must not be overlooked. The body is a machine that requires a reasonable degree of care. It should be the aim of its possessor to preserve the strength and health of the body.

Avoid sudden exertion, such as sprints to catch a street car. Excessive and unfamiliar exercise is dangerous.

Bear in mind that the man beyond middle age must secure a complete night's rest. A daily afternoon nap is beneficial. Better far to take too much sleep than rest than not enough.

Periodic visits to the doctor are essential. A careful check-up will reveal your weak points. Knowledge of any weakness will enable you to guard against undue strain or injury. After middle life a urinary analysis should be made every six months.

In what I have said, I do not mean to imply that a sedentary life is advisable, for all individuals beyond middle age. But I do mean to imply that everyone should be familiar with the limitations of his body and respect it accordingly. A certain amount of exercise is beneficial. But the same sort of exercise taken in excess is harmful.

The rule of moderation is perhaps the best guide. If golf has been advised as your form of exercise, do not overindulge in it. Too many men play 18 holes of golf when they should play only nine. This rule applies to walking, swimming, eating and smoking.

Do not deprive yourself of the many pleasures that you have been accustomed to enjoy, but take them in moderation. "A man is as old as his arteries," is a wise and true statement. But it is equally true that a man is as old as his body.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, April 1

The astral influences intervening on this day's affairs signify a state of restless conditions and anxiety, with possibly the urge to make sudden changes in environment, associates and interests generally. This may bring about complications or uncertainty regarding contracts or new arrangements, with some difficulties with strangers or in connection with new projects or agreements. With care these fresh affections may bring satisfaction and the longed-for adventure or change.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves under a strong urge to make changes in environment, associates and business projects, although these are beset with doubt, annoyance and complications with strangers. With care in the making of agreements, having an eye to deception or misrepresentation, there may be advantage and profit in the new arrangements. Be careful with writings of all kinds. A child born on this day may be restless, unsettled, adventurous, fond of new persons and contacts, and it should succeed thus, if precaution be taken as to writings and transactions with strangers.

enforcement law, becomes effective. During the interim, Ohio will have no state law prohibiting the manufacture of the brew.

Under the new law known as the Ackerman-Lawrence act, the liquor control commission is empowered to set up a system of regulation for all phases of the beer industry.

The law provides four classes of licenses, two of which deal with the manufacture and wholesale of beer, and the other two with the retail merchandising. The latter group is required to sell the beer either in bottles for consumption off the premises or in bottles or glasses for consumption at tables on the premises.

Will Bar Saloons

Sponsors of the legislation pointed out in debate in the legislature that the express requirements that the brew be sold in bottles or glasses for consumption at tables on the premises will preclude the possibility of re-establishment of bars and saloons.

Although the legislation will legalize wines containing alcohol of 3.2 per cent by weight, or less, vineyard operators have evidenced little interest. Members of the legislature from the grape producing territories have expressed a belief that it is impossible to produce palatable vinous products of such small alcoholic content.

Applicants for licenses did not await the governor's approval of the act before filing. Half a dozen state departments received requests for the permits, including the state department of education. One applicant sent his request to the teachers' licensing bureau of the education division and asked for immediate action on it.

Truesdale Freed In Lima Killing

(By Associated Press)

LIMA, O., March 31.—Loren Truesdale, 22, has won acquittal on a charge of killing his brother, Earl, 20, in the long drawn out "quarry murder" case, but he still faced possible prosecution today for the slaying of his brother's sweetheart, Miss Thelma Woods, 17.

A jury that heard his second trial on first degree murder charges for the death of Earl acquitted the youth last night after deliberating five and a half hours. The state, however, reserved decision on whether to prosecute on a separate indictment returned in the death of Miss Woods. It was considered likely the indictment would be dismissed.

The jury, in acquitting Loren, accepted the defense attorney's contention that a confession he made to the killing was obtained under duress. The state, on the basis of the admission which it claimed Truesdale made soon after his arrest last Sept. 1, asserted the youth beat his brother to death because he was "always stealing my girls," and slew Miss Woods in fear she might tell.

Couple Married At Miami Beach Home

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 31.—Jose De Landa and Miss Virginia Willis De Aguirre, daughter of John North Willis, former ambassador to Poland, were married here yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Suydam of Toledo, O.

Friends said the couple probably would remain here for a few days and then would make a trip to Havana, and possibly to the Latin American countries.

Mrs. De Aguirre was given in marriage by her father. This was her second marriage. Landa is the son of the late Don Guillermo De Landa Y Escandon, for many years governor of the federal District of Mexico including Mexico City. He makes his home in Paris, France.

Must Take It Easy

TOLEDO, O., March 31.—The thirst of beer lovers will be quenched slowly, it was predicted by O. W. Cummer, general manager of the Buckeye Brewing company.

Forecasting a beer shortage, he said the product of his company must be aged at least three months.

GARDNER, Mass.—To stimulate a spirit of cooperation among the churches, this city's 18 Protestant ministers drew from a hat their assignments for the following Sunday. No pastor was permitted to occupy his own pulpit.

Tonight Deadline On Income Returns

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Midnight tonight is the deadline for filing income tax returns.

That familiar white blank slip properly filled out with plus and minus signs, must be presented at a collector's office or in the mails by 12 or else—there's a penalty.

Taxpayers were given additional time, from March 15 to March 31, because of the banking emergency. But today the government wants a settlement of at least the first quarter on March 15 must pay interest at 6 per cent on the period from that date until today.

As a last reminder, the tax is 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income and 8 per cent above that. Surtaxes start at $6,000 under the new, higher rates instead of at $10,000. Deductions also are down; married persons from $3,500 to $2,500 single, $1,500 to $1,000. The 25 per cent deduction on earned income is out.

Despite the higher taxes the returns so far are $13,000,000 under last year.

FIVE ALLIANCE MEN ARE JAILED

Deputy Sheriff Wounded During Gun Fight Near Kensington

bandits continued at a high rate of speed, turning off on the Augusta rd. where they were suddenly forced to slow down to pass a hay wagon.

Hayes opened fire on the bandit car, Smith being unarmed. One of the fugitives stepped on the running board of his car, firing several times at the deputy. Two bullets pierced Hayes' hat while a third, glancing from the running board, struck him in the forehead.

Continuing his fire on the bandit car, Hayes shot a bullet through its gasoline tank.

Abandon Car

The Alliance men abandoned their machine and ran across the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad tracks into nearby woods. Hayes, driven back to Kensington, notified residents of the village who then called Lisbon authorities.

While Ballantine and Early were engaging the bandits in a running gun battle, the alarm was spread throughout the Kensington-Hanoverton district. Poses were rapidly formed by farmers and other residents until a huge throng soon was participating in the chase. A call came in to Salem police headquarters and Mayor John M. Davidson, Safety Director John R. Kerr, Police Chief Ralph Stoffer, Fire Chief Vincent Malloy, Patrolmen Edward Pille and William Reardon and Firemen Thomas Hagan and Michael Welch responded.

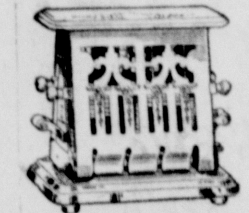

Additional forces were also formed in Lisbon and machines conveying Deputy Roy Lewton, Patrolman Charles Patterson, Marshal Dalton Pike and Game Warden Lon Boring sped to the scene of the battle. Constable Lloyd Fultz was in charge of the Hanoverton posse.

Louis Hart of Kensington, formerly of Salem, Homer Millwood, also of Kensington and Fred Smith of Salem joined the posse in the Frank L. Cox woods. Then, leaving the group and walking in another direction, began searching thickets near the J. O. Oyer farm, in Carroll county 200 yards south of the Columbiana county line.

Sighting movements in a woods as they reached the top of a small hill overlooking the Oyer swamps, Hart, Smith and Millwood opened fire and shot more than 20 times when suddenly four men arms stretching in the air, ran out into the open.

Speaking on "Life Insurance as an Investment," A. F. Tripp addressed a joint meeting of the A and B divisions of the Hi-Y club yesterday.

In the course of his discussion, Mr. Tripp stressed the value of a good investment to offset old age, disability and unemployment. The different types of investments such as stocks, bonds, life insurance, real estate, savings banks, building and loan and investment trusts were compared.

Mr. Tripp spoke once before on "Life Insurance as a Career." Vocational talks of this type are regarded as of great value by the boys in helping them to plan their careers.

MIAMI, Fla.—Without a roll call the House of Representatives passed a bill authorizing President Roosevelt to send 250,000 idle men to work in national forests for $1 a day and board. It isn't much, and it's green, of the Federation of Labor said, it may establish a bad precedent in low wages. But $1 a day and board is better than nothing a day and no board. And good workmen used to be hired in this country for $100 a year.

Some congressmen tried to defeat President Roosevelt's will, but decided that the time has not come for that yet.

TOMORROW the Hitler party proposes to start a nationwide boycott against Jews in Germany, calling the boycott "a reprisal for the atrocity campaign" alleged to have been made by Jews.

If carried out, without interference by the German government, the boycott will be harmful to German Jews in the beginning, infinitely more harmful to German business and prosperity in the end.

Action that would deprive Germany of the Jewish commercial and industrial ability that has done so much to build up German prosperity will probably not last long. The Germans are intelligent.

ILL to be introduced by Congressman Wilcox of Miami will interest holders of municipal bonds. Mr. Wilcox's bill would allow cities overburdened with debt to go into bankruptcy as individuals do, settle with their creditors on a basis of their ability to pay, and have a clean bill of health, following the bankruptcy.

A BREWER expressed his gratitude for President Roosevelt's action by sending excellent beer to the White House. The Roosevelt family will soon decide, "beer or no beer." The President's wife is a total abstainer, but if Congress, at her husband's request, says 3 is not intoxicating, then 3 is not intoxicating. To shut the innocent drink out of the White House would seem like contradicting the President.

SOME ONE tied heavy pieces of iron to the railroad track ahead of a train on which Yosuke Matsuoka, head of Japan's delegation, was traveling to Boston. The iron placed to wreck the train was wrapped in yellow and red bunting called by police "Chinese colors."

They suspect Chinese, hostile to Japan, of trying to wreck the train, but there is no proof that these are responsible.

Chinese are intelligent. Know that to wreck a train in this country, if the act should be traced to Chinese activity, might be worse for a innocent Chinese here than for anybody in Japan. They know also that any Chinese who feels that his country has been badly treated by Japan can express his resentment respectfully, most appropriately by going back to China to fight against the Japanese.

SPAIN decides that Spanish women may vote, beginning April 23, in municipal elections. That is a start.

The Latin races oppose "votes for women," perhaps because Latin women play so large a part in their husbands' affairs and have already plenty to do. Where you find a man of Latin race running a business you are apt to find his wife, dressed in plain black, behind the cashier's desk, or otherwise carrying one-half the burden.

90 NEW LAWS ON ASSEMBLY BOOKS

Ohioans Look Back On Busy Session as Six Weeks' Recess Begins

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 31.—Ninety new laws, a fourth of which were emergency measures, were passed by the Ohio general assembly during its three months session, terminating last night in a six weeks' recess.

Emergencies arising from the economic crisis soon after the lawmakers started to work early in January switched their attention from immediate consideration of the important taxation, poor relief, school financing and revenue programs. These are to be worked out during the recess, by special committees.

Two important measures, old age pension and relief from mortgage foreclosures, were passed through both houses, but were left incomplete, because of amendments adopted by one house and not concurred in by the other.

Goes to Committee
The old age pension bill was sent to a conference committee when the two houses failed to agree on amendments made by the senate. This committee, composed of Senator John P. Smolka, Marvin C. Harrison and L. L. Marshall, all of Cleveland, and Representatives H. W. Frick of Seneca, Clarence H. Burk of Huron, and Horace S. Keifer of Springfield, will work during the recess to adjust the differences.

Adjournment of the house of representatives more than two hours before the senate prevented the best mortgage foreclosure bill from being completed before the recess. The house, however, is expected after the recess to accept senate amendment of the bill, which given common judges the right to suspend issuance of orders of sale in mortgage foreclosure cases for two years on certain conditions, providing the mortgagee keeps the current interest and general property taxes paid. The law would not apply to mortgages executed after the law becomes effective.

The Whittemore bill providing for installment payment of delinquent taxes finally emerged from the snarls of amendments proposed and will go to Governor White next week along with a score or more of other measures. After two conference committees had labored with the measure, the bill finally was accepted by the senate as passed by the house. It is an emergency measure and will become effective as soon as approved by the governor.

Make Six Payments
The bill permits the payment of taxes and assessments delinquent prior to August, 1932, to be paid in six installments if election to do so is made by the taxpayer during the current year. The first five annual installments would be for 10 per cent each.

cent each and the sixth 50 per cent. Another measure held up by amendments which probably will be sent to the conference after the recess is a measure by Senator Philip Wolfe (R.) of Richland county, to give conservancy districts the authority to issue bonds to pay indebtedness incurred in organizing the districts. The senate rejected house amendments to the measure after Senator James M. Matthews (D.) of Clark county had objected.

Among bills which passed last night were the Marshall bill authorizing county officials to issue certificates of indebtedness against the county's "frozen" bank deposits to pay salaries and other claims against the county, and fixing six year terms for the municipal judges of Warren and Niles.

The senate defeated a bill to abolish the position of superintendent of investigation in the state utilities commission and authorizing the commission to appoint a secretary and other necessary officials.

In addition to signing the Ackerman White last night also approved man bill to legalize 32 beer, Governor McNamara bills creating a system of state highway patrol and transferring the department of motor vehicles from the secretary of state to the highway department.

the East Texas oil field, where two persons were killed.

In swift succession the same storm, or a series of related disturbances, wreaked havoc at Mabank, San Augustine, Shelbyville and Huntington, in Texas, then streaked across northwestern Louisiana, striking at Hall Summit, and dipping in the El Dorado vicinity.

Members of a Texas highway engineering crew saw the storm approaching a farming settlement 12 miles south of Center, between Shelbyville and San Augustine. They said it came from the south, "out of nowhere" and missed their automobile by only a few hundred feet, tearing up trees and scattering houses like straw before it. It tore a strip about a half mile wide and three miles long, collapsing houses before the occupants knew the storm was upon them.

No report was received from Tennessee Wade, a Negro community near San Augustine, and it was feared damage there was severe.

Get Stein Order
TIFFIN, O., March 31.—Former employees of the American Clay Forming company likely will be recalled to fill a large number of orders for steins, officials said.

America Locks On WASHINGTON, March 31.—More than ever the personality and philosophy of Adolf Hitler held the attention of Americans today on the eve of a nation-wide boycott of Jews in Germany.

While the state department sought to use its goods offices in a quiet way to avert the impending economic war, those who have followed the strange career of the young Austrian who has become Germany's dictator, found in his autobiography and the platform of his Nationalist-Socialist party many indications of the strong anti-Jewish feeling which is finding its expression now.

Those who have read Hitler's life story which he wrote in a Bavarian prison in 1924, after the so-called "beer-hall putsch" in Munich, says his anti-semitism is the outstanding feature of his own philosophy.

Prominent American Jews, headed by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, made a second visit to the state department yesterday in connection with the troubles of Jews in Germany.

While officials declined to say whether any diplomatic action was being taken, Under Secretary Phillips made known that the whole Jewish question is being considered carefully.

Will Act Quietly
There were many indications that this government would employ its influence quietly and in a neighborly fashion to bring some settlement. Hitler since early in his career has been bitterly opposed to Socialism. Many Socialist leaders with whom he came into contact were Jews, and therefore, some here say, the whole Socialist movement became to Hitler a plot of international Jews to gain control.

In the Hitler program written by his Lieutenant Gottfried Feder in 1920, it was set forth that no Jew is a member of the German people, that those who are not citizens may live in Germany only as guests and that if it is not possible to feed the entire population of the state, non-citizens must be expelled from the troops today cleared Berlin law courts of Jewish judges and attorneys. Among those ousted was Chief Justice Kurt Soelling.

Meanwhile, reports from the United States that Chancellor Hitler's Nazi party might be persuaded at the last minute to refrain from launching its drastic economic war on Jewry tomorrow seemed only to add fuel to the fire.

A new proclamation defined the action as the beginning of a war on the entire Jewish race of the world. A party declaration said it will be fought "until victory is ours."

See Financial Ruin
The Jews, they backs to the wall as their last appeals for mercy fell on deaf ears, have visualized their financial ruin and ultimate isolation from German cities and towns.

Such elaborate plans were being made for the beginning at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, of the nationwide boycott on all businesses and professions conducted by Jews, and even Christian Jews, that there was no apparent loophole left for retreat.

But there was no tendency in that direction as propaganda was poured through every available channel to stir up national feeling against what the Nazis called the international conspiracy of Jewry.

Reports from the United States that the boycott would be called off were cited in the press. The newspaper Angriff, edited by Joseph Goebbels, the new minister of propaganda in the Hitler cabinet, seemed particularly irritated by these reports.

Hunt Five Million For Cleveland Bank

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., March 31.—A hunt for the $5,000,000 that would pry $38,000,000 from the vaults of the unlicensed Union Trust Co. started today as two licensed Cleveland banks announced omission of their dividends.

A volunteer organization was detailed to the task of obtaining subscriptions to common stock of the formative First National bank of Cleveland that would succeed the Union Trust. As soon as it can raise $5,000,000, the Reconstruction Finance Corp. will buy a similar amount of preferred stock and make a new loan of four times that amount to the old Union Trust.

This money, together with liquid assets of the Union, will be taken over by the First National and made available to depositors.

The Cleveland Trust Co. and the Central United National bank, both of which received licenses to open as soon as the National banking holiday was liberalized, were the banks that passed their April 1 dividends.

Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust, said the action was believed by officers and directors to be the "prudent course to conserve all the bank's assets until it becomes possible to estimate future developments more clearly."

The Central United, in a statement, said its dividend was omitted, despite "substantial earnings for the first quarter of 1933 because of a desire to conserve earnings and build up reserves during the present period of national economic reconstruction."

SENATORS PREDICTED AS YANKEES' FOREMOST PENNANT RIVAL

Yanks Are Conceded Big Edge; Indians, A's Ranked High in Fight

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 31.—Six rival clubs have resorted to extraordinary measures and the seventh has changed hands completely, all in a common purpose to break up the latest monopoly of the New York Yankees, but it remains to be shown whether singly or collectively they can stop the world champions from capturing their eighth American league pennant. The betting is they won't.

Since 1921, the only clubs successful in dislodging Babe Ruth & Co. from the top have been the Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics. Once more it appears likely these two clubs, especially the Senators, will furnish the principal challenge to Yankee supremacy, despite the fact that all four of the western clubs, led by Cleveland and Detroit, are considerably strengthened and confident of making more than a perfunctory pennant gesture.

Hope Breaks With Change

Around the circuit, the hope has grown that the 1933 race will be better balanced and that the Yankees will not benefit from all the "breaks" credited to them last season. It seems much more of a hope than a conviction, for the Yankees are buttressed by more combined experience, power and pitching than any other entry.

The New York pitching, on paper looks no more effective than that of either the Athletics or Senators, who traded off Phipps Marberry and Lloyd Brown in exchange for two southpaws, Walter Stewart and Earl Whitehill. The Yankee slugging has been no more pronounced than the fence-busting of the A's or the Cleveland Indians. The champion's defense seems no more air-tight than that of the Detroit Tigers, St. Louis Browns or Senators.

But from the top to bottom of their batting order, the Yankees are a tough outfit to match. It may be true they rely on a number of ancient performers, including Sewell, Combs and the eminent Ruth, but it is equally true Manager Joe McCarthy has some of the finest young reserve strength in either league.

At least a half dozen prospective Yankee benchwarmers would be regulars on a majority of other clubs.

Washington, with Goose Goslin back in his old slugging haunts and a four-starred twirling staff consisting of Crowder, Weaver, Whitehill and Stewart, figure to be very much in the pennant race. But the Senators' reserve strength is questionable and Joe Cronin's ability to handle the triple responsibility of shortstop, slugger and manager must be proved.

Sentators Feared By Yanks

Last year, Washington was the only club able to hold the Yankees even on the season's series but it is a fact that throughout the rest of the league the champions are likely to strike much more terror and awe into the opposition than the Senators.

The Athletics, Tigers and Indians, all featuring the development of youthful new stars, should be in the thick of the scramble for first division places. Cleveland expects much more consistent pitching, plus the development of such new talent as infielders Harley Boss and Bill Knickerbocker to sustain the team's upward progress. Bucky Harris, too, looks for striking results with his Tigers.

Time Changed for Sachsen Contest

New Castle, Pa., and Alliance Sachsen league basketball teams will clash for championship honors at the Salem High gymnasium at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

A change in the time was announced today, it being effected to permit members of the two teams to compete in a tournament later tomorrow night.

Salem and Youngstown girls clash in a duel at 8:30.

BASEBALL PARKS WILL SELL BEER

3.2 Brew Sales Scheduled In Five Major League Stadia This Year

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 31.—Thirty baseball fans will find beer on sale in at least five major league baseball parks this season, reports to the Associated Press indicated today.

With the season opening April 12, five days after the new 3.2 beer becomes legal, the two Chicago clubs, White Sox and Cubs and the three Metropolitan New York teams, Giants, Yankees, and Brooklyn Dodgers, have announced it will be available in their parks.

Five other clubs, however, will not permit beer to be sold, for a variety of reasons, while six have made no definite decision. Most of the these latter are awaiting the necessary state legislation.

Beer will be sold at bars in the White Sox and Cubs parks while the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants favor its sale at concession stands. The New York clubs, however, have made no definite plans pending enactment of state legislation at Albany.

Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington and Pittsburgh will not permit beer to be sold in their parks. In connection with this announcement as it affects Cleveland and Cincinnati, it was pointed out that the prospective new state law will provide for consumption of beer only at tables.

The two Boston and two Philadelphia clubs have not reached any decision as yet. Neither have the two St. Louis clubs although it was said the Browns would permit the sale of beer while the Cardinals would not. They use the same park.

Temple Gridders Answer Call of New Mentor

Coach Pop Warner, veteran grid mentor, formerly of Stanford University, pictured as he lined up his team at Temple University, Philadelphia, for the first Spring workout. He is shaking hands with Philip Castagna, Temple's star guard. Warner is the creator of the system of football strategy that bears his name. It is a constant source of controversy among grid experts as to its merits as compared with the system devised and used by the late Knute Rockne.

Notre Dame Honors Rockne

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 31.—Notre Dame today honored the memory of its immortal viking of football, Knute Rockne, and looked back longingly on a glorious era of athletic achievement that may never return.

Two years ago the great master of the "Fighting Irish" was killed in an airplane crash in Kansas and the entire university joined in tribute and prayer. Classes for the day were dismissed and Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame, planned to sing a requiem high mass.

Notre Dame's football army, all ways 10 or more full teams strong, has fought many a rousing battle under the leadership of Coach "Hunk" Anderson since "Rock" passed on, but its supremacy over the college gridiron has been broken. The fall started with Southern California's great victory in 1931, and continued through last season when the forces of the south end raiders were leveled twice under attacks by the same Trojans and the Panthers from Pittsburgh.

The football record "after Rockne" has been 13 won, four lost and one tied as compared to Rockne's great record of 255 victories, 12 defeats and five ties in 13 successive campaigns, ending with 19 straight conquests.

From Southern Camps

TAMPA—Either Eppa Rixey or Silas Johnson will pitch the Reds' opening game against the Pittsburgh Pirates, April 12, and Rixey seems the favorite.

Manager Donie Bush disclosed his probable starting line-up today. Eppa won only five games last year, and four were off the Pirates. The probable batting order in the season opener: Morrissey, third base; Bottomley, first base; Hafey, left field; Moore, center field; Lombardi, catcher; Rice, right field, and Durocher, shortstop.

LOS ANGELES—If you ask Manager Charlie Grimm, he'll tell you one of the wisest Cub winter moves was the acquisition of Harvey Hendrick.

Hendrick can play first base or the outfield with equal ability and may get a chance at both jobs during the coming campaign.

12 Teams to Compete In Class A Circuit; Pick Board Members

Organization of Salem softball leagues to compete for Class A and Class B titles during the 1933 season will be undertaken at a meeting at the Memorial building at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

More than 20 teams are expected to vie for honors in the two circuits, both of which are slated to get under way during the latter part of April.

Possibility of the organization of a third league will also be considered at the session.

Board Members Chosen

In charge of the meeting will be the board of arbitration, again composed of Mayor John M. Davidson, Treasurer A. Earl Beardmore and Joseph Reese. They begin their duties at this Monday meeting, replacing the basketball board composed of James D. Primm and Beardmore. No successor was named for Michael Schuller who resigned from the latter unit.

Interest is gradually increasing in the coming softball campaign and plans are under way to open the season somewhat earlier this year than in past campaigns. If weather is favorable the season may start as early as April 24.

Receive Eight Entries

Eight almost certain entries have already been received for the Class A circuit by Director J. M. Kelley while the Mullins Foremen's club, 1932 champion, will be on hand to defend the title it gained by upsetting Scott Chisholm's United Cigars in the playoff for the crown. Other probable entries at present are:

A. U. Wreckers, backed by A. P. Morris and Earl Grate; Smith Dairy team, Zimmerman's "Black Diamonds," Community Service, Greenstein Tires, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Salem China company, Calkins Chicks and the Salem Hardware.

The Wreckers, Smith Dairy and "Black Diamonds" are new to softball competition and will replace the Ohio Edison and Cox Studios whose managers have announced that those teams will not be entered this year.

May Adopt New Plan

Other contestants are expected to boost the total list of teams to 12 or 14, it being probable that the Class A circuit will be split in two divisions. Each league, if the plan is adopted, will be separate from the other with the champions of the two colliding for the city title at the close of the season.

Quite a number of important business matters, including the election of an umpire, are scheduled at the meeting, all managers, both Class A and B, being urged to attend. In regards to an arbiter, George "Sim" Earley, who officiated at games in such outstanding manner a year ago, should be retained for the post.

Arrange to Improve Field

Kelley has made arrangements with Service Director Clyde R. Reich for the improvement of Centennial park playing fields as soon as the weather permits Reich's crews to start work. The recent heavy rains have played havoc with both diamonds and while everything else may be all set for the opening of the season, it will be some time before the fields are in shape.

Now that basketball season is over, Kelley is also concentrating on the organization of a volleyball league in conjunction with gymnasium classes which are held at the Memorial gym every Tuesday and Friday night. The classes are in session from 5 to 6:30.

Broadcasting Her Arrival

To tiny Marilyn Morris, of Troy, N. Y., belongs the distinction of being the world's youngest radio broadcaster. When only two hours and 45 minutes old, Baby Marilyn's robust voice was heard over a radius of 5,000 miles. She broadcast over the short-wave transmission set of her father, Robert M. Morris, a well-known amateur radio enthusiast.

Cincinnati Council Plays Safe; Passes All Statutes Again

CINCINNATI, March 31.—After a strenuous 24-hour period in which most of the city's law-making of the last six years was duplicated, Cincinnati's officialdom sat back today and heaved a great sigh of relief.

The city council specifically stated that it did not admit the laws were invalid, but it didn't want to take any chances.

Officials were frightened by a ruling of the supreme court holding a property assessment was invalid because notice of it was published in the City Bulletin. The court found the Bulletin was not a newspaper "of general circulation," in which the city's charter provides all ordinances must be printed.

If the assessment was worthless, perhaps all the other ordinances were the same because they had been printed in the Bulletin. Thus the council reasoned, despite an informal opinion from Chief Justice Carl V. Weyand of the supreme court that the court had passed only on one ordinance.

Legion Pledges Aid

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., March 31.—Delegates to the tenth Ohio district convention of the American Legion were told by Thomas W. McCaw, of Dennison, vice commander of the Ohio department, that "we shall not put any obstacle in the way" of President Roosevelt's economy program.

Among the other speakers was Mrs. Lee Moore of Newark, department secretary of the auxiliary.

Goodyear Increases Working Schedules

AKRON, March 31.—Stepping of the factory work week from three to five days was announced today by Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. Approximately 10,000 workers fected by the increased production schedule effective Monday.

A seasonal increase in production normally is undertaken at the first of the year but was postponed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Six weeks of spring football practice for Minnesota gridmen will commence on April 3. Coach Bernie Bierman has posted a lengthy plea on the locker room bulletin board, urging football players to report in fair condition. About 100 candidates are expected to turn out.

CHAPTER XLIX

Sitting with Landers at dinner, Mary marvelled that she could seem to be alive to other people, when what appeared to be her living self was as dead as a mummy, ready to crumble to dust at the first touch. The shock of Steve's infidelity, after the first bewildering pain, was like an anesthetic that dulled anguish and stupefied the spirit. She saw Buck Landers before her, but he lacked reality—he was but a wavering form, like a reflection seen in a pool. His voice reached her distinctly, but her mind scarcely registered the impact of his words.

"It looks like you'll have to marry me, after all," he said.

It was curious that he took it so seriously, when it didn't matter at all. How could anything be important to anyone—why should anyone want to marry this relic of the girl who had been Mary Kennedy?

"Why do you want to marry me?" she asked dully. "I have nothing to give you. What could you do with me, really? There'll be no more to me. I'm hollow—if you touched me, I'd fall to ashes."

He consecrated his arguments with the haste of a man who had to press an advantage that would never come again.

"I'm going to make you snap out of this idea of letting everything go to pieces over a fellow who ran out on you. Good Heavens! where's your pride? Do you want him—and her—to think you're a dumb, heart-broken fool? Haven't you nerve to show them you don't care? If it was my last act on earth, I'd slap a cable right back at him that I was married to me. It would hurt him up alive."

It was possible, in her arid mind, to agree with Landers. Yes, it would hurt Steve to know he had been so lightly loved. To marry Buck Landers might be like pouring acid on Steve's vanity, on his happiness. Would a cable reach him and flay him, in the midst of his new happiness, with scorpion stings, lashing his pride? It was but right that he, too, should suffer. But revenge, however just, required a fierce heat of passion, and the blood in her veins was frigid. "Is it possible to fight back against sorrow?" she wondered out of the melancholy that was crushing her.

"Absolutely!" Landers shot back at her. "If you will like a coward, you're sunk but now is your chance to sock back at him with a knockout. Beat him to the punch—cable him you were married last week. I'm not going to let you flop, Mary. You're too attractive and game and beautiful. I'm the man to put you on your feet—to help you fight back. We'll do Europe together—Paris—there's be wine, and lights, and music. Oh, I guarantee you that in a month you'll enjoy life as you never enjoyed it before!"

His patience was infinite; his strength seemed to her, was as Gibraltar. Through everything, his devotion had never wavered. The intensity of his voice, the pounding logic of his words, made her wonder if, after all, he had the power to show her the way to happiness.

"You'd be cheated if you married me," she said. "There's no love left in me to give anybody."

"Give me a chance, Mary! Give me the chance I've earned!" he demanded fiercely. "You made a mistake once before—when you picked a man who threw you down because you were poor. Are you going to let a he-gold digger rule your heart? Marry me, and get all there is out of life. I've earned you, Mary—don't be obstinate now at the last. I'll worship you and protect you forever."

His voice was a dreary echo in her heart; what he said seemed to be irrefutably true, yet it seemed of no consequence. The idea of marriage that flamed in Buck Landers was without significance in her dazed understanding—whether she did, or didn't would not matter either way. There was nothing to lose except the surrender of her dead, valueless self. It was incomprehensible that he should want the Mary Kennedy who had dissolved from flesh into shadow.

"I've got to have you!" he implored her. "We'll find happiness together! Let's try it, Mary. Won't you trust yourself to me, dear?" She felt dizzy, beaten. The strength to combat his words was not in her nervous being. . . . "Maybe you're right," she sighed, like a child. "You're too good to me—I don't understand why you want me, but—oh, I don't know. . . ."

Her voice broke, and he nailed his advantage swiftly.

"Tomorrow morning, first thing, I'll call for you, and we'll shoot down to the marriage license bureau. We'll get the whole thing over before noon. No more time for hesitating, Mary. This time it's going through—you've everything to gain and nothing to lose!" She looked at him dreamily, wondering why he thought it was important either way. Steve was in Cuba. . . . was in the arms of Helen Calvert. . . . tomorrow she would be the wife of Buck Landers—or, possibly, she might be quiet and dead in her small room. It might be that life would flee from her, of its own accord, following the dusty trail of her vanished love.

"Whatever happens—is out of my hands now—" she murmured helplessly.

"Leave everything to me," he commanded her. "Give me Steve's address in Cuba—I'm going to cable him we were married last week."

It didn't matter whether he cabled Steve at all or not. She was done with trying to think; how could that dry sponge of a brain inside her head have any preferences, any opinion? There was a lethargy stealing over her, the balm of exhaustion. She wanted to go home and lose herself, if it was possible, in oblivion.

"I'll have my decks free and clear by morning," Landers was saying. "There won't be any hereafter with that Guido woman, either. I'll give her a check big enough tonight to make her forget all her nutty ideas. And then, Mary darling, we'll start down the home stretch together. . . . weather clear, track fast!"

Grief and shock were as a drug to Mary, and her anguished mind died away in the dead blackness of slumber that was almost coma. She awoke soon after dawn, still dazed, still living, though lifeless. Mechanically, she bathed and dressed—came down the stairs; her landlady was in the hall, her face the color of tallow, her eyes ghostly pools of fear.

"Before God, Miss Kennedy, he came to me in a dream last night. I saw him and heard his voice like as if he was in the room. It seemed like he was going to haunt me forever unless—I told you everything—"

Her incoherence meant nothing to Mary, but the woman thrust the morning newspaper before her. There, on the front page, in bold headlines, Mary read a terrible truth. BUCK LANDERS, SPORT KING, STABBED TO DEATH IN WOMAN'S FLAT. (To Be Continued)

Georgia Coleman, 21-year-old Olympic champion, whose latest and greatest dive was made into the sea of matrimony when she wed Roof Gilson, salesman of Jackson, Mich., secretly at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The famous mermaid, in announcing her marriage, said she plans to abandon swimming and diving to devote herself to the job of being plain Mrs. Gilson.

Montour Line Faces New Court Tangle

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, March 31. — Another court tangle has developed in the fight of the Pennsylvania railroad and others to prevent completion of the 13-mile Montour railroad between the Youngstown steel district and the Ohio river.

Attorneys for the Pittsburgh Coal company, owner of the Montour, filed a motion in federal court yesterday to quash subpoenas issued for taking of depositions from defendants here. The court set April 4 as the date for hearing arguments on the motion.

LEGISLATURE HIGHLIGHTS

(By Associated Press)

Thumbnail sketch of activities in the legislature: The beer bill, allowing the sale of 3.2 brew after April 6, was law today. It was signed by Governor White last night, an hour after he received it from the legislature.

The chief executive also affixed his signature to the McNamara bill creating a state highway patrol of 60 men and providing for transfer of the motor vehicles bureau from the secretary of state's office to the highway department.

Ready for gubernatorial approval today was the horse race betting bill. An attempt to legalize betting at dog races was defeated in the senate.

Both houses before the legislature began a six weeks' recess last night, accepted a conference committee's report on the Baker bill providing an orderly method of quick liquidation of closed banks. The report recommended appointment of conservators for state banks where necessary.

The senate approved the Best mortgage foreclosure moratorium bill but inserted some amendments which must await house concurrence after the recess. A conference committee was named to iron out differences over the old age pension bill, passed by both houses. The committee will report when the assembly reconvenes.

By a vote of 111 to 0, the house passed the Lloyd bill to authorize the state utilities commission to investigate "gate rate" prices on gas and sent it to the governor. Other bills on which legislative action was completed would permit installment payment of delinquent taxes, permit non-state aid school districts to borrow money for payment of back salaries, exempt news reel from censorship, and authorize counties to issue certificates of indebtedness.

Both houses worked far into the night in an effort to pass finally any urgent legislation before the recess, which will end May 15.

During the intervening weeks, various committees will draw up legislation dealing with unemployment relief, school financing, the state budget and other pressing matters.
